

Maritime

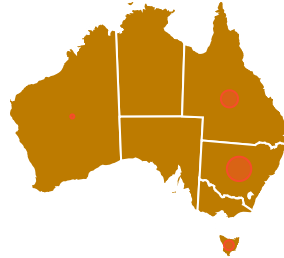

Water Transport ANZSIC 4810 & 4820

The Maritime sector services international bluewater transport, near coastal fishing/aquaculture, Defence/Navy, offshore oil and gas industry, scientific services, inland and near coastal water transport, the tourism industry, search and rescue.

66,000

Domestic seafarers registered with the Australian Maritime Association (AMSA)

Training is concentrated in NSW (42%), followed by Queensland (23%), Tasmania (11%) and Western Australia (8%)

Employment opportunities for the Maritime sector relate to new technologies and automation developing Maritime skills in e-navigation, autonomous berthing, automated mooring and dredging and vessel operations

$5.76 Billion

was the annual revenue of the Maritime industry in 2020-21

80 %

of Australian imports and exports are carried by the Maritime Industry

5,980

5,980 enrolments in Maritime related programs and qualifications in 2019

95%

of qualifications in 2019 were provided by TAFE institutions with 5% delivered by Universities

Vacancies

exist on vessels servicing the Oil & Gas sector in the Northwest

- Ship's Officer
- Deck Crew

In Demand

- Ship's Master
- Ship's Engineer
- Electro Technical Officer (ETO)
- Electric Engineering Technician

over 78%

of employers in the Maritime sector reported a skills shortage during the last 12 months

Source: LDSC Industry Profile, Maritime, 2021

